

Dear [Recipient Name],

I am writing this because I've been thinking a lot about us and where we stand. I value our connection, but I also want to make sure we are both comfortable with the pace and direction of our relationship.

I want to be open about the fact that I see potential for a future with you. However, I want to emphasize that there is absolutely no pressure or rush to figure everything out right now. I am perfectly happy continuing to get to know you and enjoying the time we spend together as it comes.

Please know that I respect your space and your own timeline. My main priority is that we both feel happy and heard. I'm not looking for an immediate commitment or a deep serious talk unless you feel ready for one.

Let's just keep being ourselves and see where things lead naturally. I'm glad you're in my life, regardless of what the future holds.

Best,

[Your Name]
