Dear [Seller Name],

I want to start by acknowledging how much effort you have put into preparing your home for this past weekend's showings. I know that having a constant stream of potential buyers through your private space is physically and emotionally exhausting.

Please know that your hard work has not gone unnoticed. The presentation of the home was excellent, and the high volume of traffic we experienced is a direct result of the care you have taken with the property.

To give you some well-deserved breathing room, I have updated the showing calendar to "No Showings" for the next [Number] days. This will allow you to relax and return to your normal routine while I focus on following up with the agents and buyers who visited.

I will provide you with a comprehensive feedback report by [Time/Day] and will reach out immediately if any formal offers are submitted. In the meantime, please take this time to rest.

Thank you for your continued patience and partnership.

Best regards,
