Dear [Patient Name],

It has been one month since your last hearing aid fitting and adjustment appointment. We are writing to check on your progress and ensure you are getting the most benefit from your devices.

By now, you should be feeling more comfortable with the sound quality and the physical fit of your hearing aids. However, it is common to require minor fine-tuning as your brain continues to adapt to new sounds.

Please take a moment to consider the following questions:

- Are you comfortable inserting and removing the devices?
- Is the physical fit comfortable for all-day wear?
- Are there specific environments where you are still struggling to hear?
- Are you comfortable with the daily maintenance and charging/battery changes?

If you are experiencing any whistling, discomfort, or if the sound does not feel quite right, we encourage you to schedule a follow-up adjustment. Most fine-tuning at this stage is quick and significantly improves the overall experience.

To schedule an appointment, please call our office at [Phone Number] or email us at [Email Address].

We look forward to hearing from you and helping you maintain your hearing health.

Sincerely,
