Re: NOTICE OF FORMAL DEMAND FOR PRESERVATION OF MARITAL ASSETS

Dear [Spouse's Name],

This letter serves as a formal demand regarding the preservation of all marital assets and property currently in your possession or under your control. In light of the [pending/contemplated] dissolution of our marriage, you are hereby instructed to cease and desist from any actions that would result in the dissipation, concealment, transfer, or encumbrance of marital property.

Specifically, you are required to maintain the status quo regarding the following:

- Real estate holdings and physical property;
- Bank accounts (checking, savings, and money market);
- Investment portfolios, stocks, bonds, and retirement accounts (401k, IRA);
- Business interests and corporate entities;
- Personal property of significant value (vehicles, jewelry, collectibles);
- Digital assets and cryptocurrency.

You are further notified to preserve all financial records, including bank statements, tax returns, receipts, and digital communications relevant to the marital estate. Any unauthorized withdrawal of funds, unusual spending, or transfer of assets to third parties will be documented and presented to the court as a claim for dissipation of marital assets.

Please acknowledge receipt of this demand in writing within [Number] days. Failure to comply with this notice may result in immediate legal action, including a request for an emergency temporary restraining order or an injunction to freeze accounts.

Sincerely,
