

Subject: Protecting Your New Life Together: Estate Planning for Newlyweds

Dear [Client Name],

Congratulations on your recent marriage! This is an incredibly exciting time as you begin building your future together.

As you merge your lives and finances, it is the ideal time to ensure that your joint assets and your spouse are fully protected. Many couples overlook that marriage significantly changes your legal standing regarding property, inheritance, and medical decision-making.

I am writing to recommend that you meet with [Attorney Name] at [Law Firm Name]. They specialize in asset protection and estate planning specifically for new couples. They can assist you with:

- Updating beneficiary designations on accounts and insurance policies.
- Creating or revising Wills and Trusts to reflect your new marital status.
- Establishing Powers of Attorney and Healthcare Directives.
- Protecting pre-marital assets and planning for future growth.

Taking these steps now provides peace of mind, knowing that your partner is protected no matter what the future holds. I have included their contact information below for your convenience.
