Re: Demand for Good Faith Resolution of Shareholder Dispute regarding [Law Firm Name]

Dear [Recipient Name],

This letter is formal notice regarding the ongoing disputes between the shareholders of [Law Firm Name]. As a shareholder, I am writing to formally demand a good faith effort to resolve these matters without the need for further escalated legal action or formal litigation.

The primary issues requiring immediate resolution include, but are not limited to:

- [Item 1: e.g., Disagreements over profit distribution]
- [Item 2: e.g., Management and operational deadlocks]
- [Item 3: e.g., Alleged breaches of the Shareholder Agreement dated [Date]]
- [Item 4: e.g., Access to firm financial records and accounting]

It is in the best interest of the firm, its clients, and all stakeholders that we reach a settlement that adheres to our fiduciary duties and the governing documents of the firm. Continued conflict threatens the firm's reputation, financial stability, and ethical obligations to our clients.

Proposed Resolution Process:

I propose that we schedule a formal meeting or mediation session within [Number] business days of this letter. I am prepared to discuss [Briefly state proposed solution, e.g., a buyout, restructuring, or voluntary dissolution] to achieve a final and equitable separation or realignment of interests.

Please provide your written response or the name of your legal counsel by [Date] at [Time]. If I do not receive a meaningful response by that time, I will be forced to pursue all available legal and equitable remedies, including but not limited to judicial dissolution, an accounting, or claims for breach of contract and fiduciary duty.

This letter is sent for settlement purposes only and is protected under [Applicable State Rule of Evidence, e.g., Rule 408]. It does not constitute a waiver of any rights or remedies available to me under law or equity.

I look forward to your prompt response and a professional resolution to this matter.

Sincerely,
